Most simply made is this blouse of cream cotton voile. Being all in one piece in the inevitable peasant style, it depends for its distinction upon the rather novel arrangement of the trimming. This consists of bands of the voile embroidered in old blue cotton in a conventional design. These are about two inches wide and are applied horizontally at a distance of three or four inches. There are also epaulets of the same which form the cuffs. The Dutch neck is finished by a narrow pleated rill of batiste with a tie of black satin which is drawn beneath the upper band of trimming.

The Proper Thing.

Reg: "I am doing now just the opposite of what I did in my previous life."

Peg: "I suppose in your previous existence you must have been always lending money."

It really pains the average man to concentrate absolutely, because he hasn't been used to doing it. The unaccustomed mental effort strains his mind's muscles just as an unaccustomed physical effort would lame him physically.

What the world needs is more men and women whose minds have been trained from childhood to be capable of concentration.

I remember a girl I knew in college who could sit down in a room crowded with girls laughing and talking, bend over her Latin book and instantly become oblivious to all around her. In her concentration upon her task. We used to say things to each other particularly calculated to distract her attention and laugh at her when she failed to rise to the bait, and some times even take her book away from her and otherwise plague her, but we all admired her just the same and knew she would amount to something.

And she has.

Given average ability and the habit of concentration as against unusual mental outfit and inability to concentrate, and I'll back the former every time.

I wish the habit of concentration

Bell Boy: "Four hundred and four says the steam pipes have burst in his room."

Clerk: "Charge him for a Russian bath."

"Can I get off this afternoon to go to a funeral?" asked the office boy. "Who's funeral?" asked the man with a cynical smile. "I guess it's going to be the home team's."—Yonkers Statesman.

INDIAN LANDS

IN EASTERN OKLAHOMA

At last the U. S. government realizes the fruitlessness of trying to make farmers of the red men; they also realize the folly of longer withholding this magnificent empire of agriculture, oil and mineral lands from development, consequently a new field of untold wealth has been opened up, where great crops of corn, wheat, oats, cotton, alfalfa, potatoes and all kinds of fruits are raised successfully and profitably; these Indian lands were the choice of millions of acres and are in the garden spot of the new state and in the following counties: Washington, Mayes, Creek, Wagoner, Muskogee, Nowata, Rogers and Tulsa, along the M. & K. and Iron Mountain railroads; none of our lands are over six miles from good towns; the soils are rich and mellow, the climate is ideal, the winters are mild and short, good water at 40 feet, the average rainfall is 35 to 45 inches, accident to grow any crop, the products of eastern Oklahoma command the highest price owing to the nearness of the Eastern markets and the low transportation charges to the Gulf coast; eastern Oklahoma has the greatest amount of, and the cheapest fuel of any state in the Union; ample provision has been made for the best of schools; eastern Oklahoma has a permanent school fund of over $5,000,000; with one exception this is the largest permanent school fund of any state and insures to every boy and girl within its borders the best of school advantages; the taxation is low; the company I represent own over 40,000 acres of these rich and productive lands in farms of 40 to 640 acres each; some are improved and some are unimproved; it's all paid for; titles are absolutely perfect; we are selling these rich lands very cheap and on easy terms; greatest opportunity ever offered the homeseeker or investor to buy rich, black lands for home or investment; in many cases our prices for these good lands are absolutely perfect; for the unproductive dry lands of the West, the best of school advantages; the taxation is low; the company I represent own over 40,000 acres of these rich and productive lands in farms of 40 to 640 acres each;
